GREAT ESCAPES

ITINERARY 2 DAYS / 1 NIGHT

Day 1 Quito / Baños – Pailón del Diablo

Visit the Pailon del Diablo (the Devil's Cauldron), 30 minutes from the town of Baños, on the road to Puyo (Pastaza). Considered one of the most popular attractions in the area, the names come from the formation of a pot and also when viewed from the suspension bridge, you can see the devil's face in the rock.

The Pailon del Diablo is approximately 100 feet high. This beautiful and impressive waterfall has three drops that form a whirlpool and a cloud of mist. The water temperature is approximately 23 °C.

Lunch included.

In the afternoon Casa del Arbol's Swing at the End of the World

After a morning on the pailon del diablo, it's time to check out the world's most intense swing set. The Casa Del Arbol swing brings back that thrill and excitement you experienced on the playground as a kid, but at a whole new level.

La Casa del Arbol directly translates to "treehouse," and that's exactly what it is. And I mean exactly. It's a literal house with an A-frame roof, shingles, and siding, built between two massive tree branches.

Accommodation.

Day 2 Morning rafting and back to Quito

The best rafting in the area surrounding Baños is, hands down, the Pastaza River. This river is actually pretty famous within the Ecuadorian rafting scene. It winds its way between Llanganates Park and Sangay volcano through miles of the Amazon rainforest.

Rafters gather at the company's offices in Baños at 9 am and then go by van to the river. All equipment, including safety gear (and lessons on using it effectively while out on the water), is included. After riding the rapids, imagine treats rafters to lunch and returns them to town by 2 pm. I can't think of a better way to spend your first morning in Baños.

You'll get to ride the sky swing from that house, which provides phenomenal 360-degree views of the surrounding jungle mountains. On this Baños Ecuador Swing, you'll feel like you're soaring among the clouds, completely weightless. It's a true one-of-a-kind experience.

After lunch, back to Quito.
